You don't have to get into a car, standing in line or spend several days waiting while your DVDs travel back and forth between your home and a shipping center. But choose a service that does not satisfy your needs can make the process pale compared to other purchase and rental methods. The first thing to keep in mind is the platform that the site requires. Most movie sites require Windows XP. Some also operate with Windows Vista or Windows 2000. Only the iTunes music store supports the Macintosh operating system and none of the main sites currently supports Linux. Most sites also requires Internet Explorer and Windows Media Player. Although you can view most Firefox sites, the Movielink site will only operate with Internet Explorer with the ActiveX enabled control. Amazon Unbox requires Microsoft.net Framework and Vongo requires a proprietary application. For many users, the next Big Deal-Breaker is the selection of the site. Download sites have their films from film studios, who own digital rights to films. A site cannot offer the film without first negotiating an agreement with the study. Some sites, like Movielink, have agreements with lots of important studies, so they have a wide selection of mainstream movies. Others, such as Guba, have a selection of free independent films and studio releases you can rent for a fee. Vongo is the property of Starz Entertainment, and his selection only reflects what Starz has the right to transmit. When you find a site with a selection of movies you like, the next thing to watch is the quality of the films. There are a couple of To keep in mind. One is resolution, which is measured in pixels. The higher the resolution, the best is the quality of the image. For example, movies in the Wal-Mart video download store have a resolution of 640 x 480 pixels, which is the IL As the lowest standard television resolution. Wal-Mart also offers a resized version for portable multimedia players with a resolution of 320 x 240 pixels. It is also possible to measure the quality in bitrate, often measured in bits per second (bps). The greater the bitrate, the best is the quality bitrate - DVD is about 5 kilobits per second (Kbps) or 5000 bps. The codec, or the program that encodes and decodes the digital video, can also significantly affect the quality of the video. However, sites are not always specified as codec use. Finally, before buying or renting movies online, you need to read the terms of use of the site carefully and familiarize yourself with your DRM. Some sites are relatively flexible. You can play movies on multiple machines, download them on portable multimedia players and even burn them on DVD. Other sites offer a lot less options - for example, Amazon Unbox received criticisms shortly after the flexibility launch perceived of his terms of use. Several sites allow you to make a backup disk that will only play on your computer originally used to download the file. For sites using streaming media, you never really have a copy of the movie, simply look at it as flow ..Sonce you have found a site that meets your criteria for the platform, selection, quality and conditions Use, some simple questions can help you make your final choice: how much does movies cost? Are they almost expensive as DVDs? If so, would you rather find a cheapest alternative or attach to superior quality DVDs? The rental and purchase options correspond to what you are looking for? If the site offers a subscription program, do you have enough movie interested in making it useful? Are movies compatible with any portable device you want to use to watch them? Several sites guarantee that their files will reproduce on any device compatible with Microsoft PlaysForSure, but others have more limited compatibility. Does the site use a file format you have had good or bad experiences with in the past? Do you need a download manager or player download? If so, do you mind downloading and learning to use them or would you prefer to use programs with which you have already familiar? The player has all the functionality you want - you can pause, go back and quickly? To see a comparison between some sites, take a look at these articles from TechCrunch and Extremetech.next, we will take a look at the movie Download the services that are now available. By Liz Jacobs Download the image of Michanolimit from Fotolia.com Mozilla Firefox is a web browser similar to Internet Explorer or Google Chrome. The browser is part of the Mozilla Application Suite. Firefox makes the movie download simple because once downloaded, a window opens that allows you to immediately access the download. Download a movie in Firefox is very similar to downloading a movie in any other browser. However, the download window is different because Firefox has its own unique browser interface. Go to a site like Netflix, movie download, # 1 online movie download, Joost or Hulu. (See Resources and References). Sign up for the site. Some sites offer a free 30-day trial. Some listed sites are completely free. Select the category "Films." Click on the genre of the film you want to see as a comedy, drama or horror. Click on the particular film that interests you. Click "Download". Some sites, such as Hulu, do not include a download button. Their movies streaming on the network. To download them, go to a site like Keepvid, Video Downloader or Vidimonkey. Copy the URL of the film you want to download. Put the URL in the box on Keepvid, the video downloader or Vidmonkey. Click "Send". And your movie Download on your computer.
