Old shoes song

Say goodbye to pilgrim shoesThe chunky, square-toed, lug-soled shoe that infected biz-world over the past 5 years has left the building. In get-ahead America, the trend is toward updated versions of traditional dress shoes. Shoes are longer and narrower, and soles are thinner—in part to jibe with the ripple effect of wider trouser legs. More shine, less matte finish. "For a classic choice that will be safe from the whims of fashion, opt for a moderately rounded toe—not too long, not too square," suggests Boye. "Take a look at Johnston & Murphy, Coach, Ferragamo, and Cole Haan. Expensive shoes are a bargain if they're timeless." Stylish, comfortable shoes for a guy who's on his feet all dayDesigners realize that some formal occasions require more stamina than a cardio session, so they're making dressy shoes comfy. Prada has introduced a great-looking sneaker/dress-shoe combination, and Cole Haan has teamed up with Nike to develop a formal shoe with an air pocket. These hybrid designs are comfortable enough to make you the last man standing on any dance floor or at any business meeting. Your general guidelines for selecting a stylish pair: Stick with black and go for a rubber sole that isn't too chunky. Keep the look streamlined and wear black business socks, never gym socks. Don't even consider looking at orthopedic dress shoes—they're for people with severe foot problems or for happily married grandfathers.Wear suede shoes year-roundSuede is no longer limited to fall and winter. Cole Haan and Helmut Lang make both classic and edgy versions. Two things are inappropriate: suede at a formal occasion and dirty suede.How to tell whether a pair of shoes is high qualityItalian-made shoes (known for their good workmanship and high-quality leathers) are worth the cash. The sole will be sleek and the stitching discreet (like the pair by Ermenegildo Zegna shown here). The leather will be smooth and soft to the touch. And the person selling them won't try to convince you that they'll be comfortable "once you break them in."Shoes to go with navy pantsBlack pants require black shoes. Navy slacks require caramel or chocolate-brown shoes. Just as in boxing, being black and blue is never a good thing.Demote an old pair of dress shoes for use in rainy weatherWhen the day of the big meeting and the day of the big downpour coincide, make your oldest (and least favorite) leather lace-ups the ones that take the beating. Usually you'll want to resole dress shoes in leather, as it's a more sophisticated look, but for this hard-use pair, go the rubber route.Don't wear loafers with a tux...We'll wear high heels in Wrigley's bleachers before we'll wear slip-ons with a suit that's not a tux. A suit cries out for shoelaces or a functional buckle. By the way, any metal on your shoes should harmonize with your belt buckle, your watch, and, if you're packing, your pistol.Try out a pair of desert boots..."Desert boots are making a big comeback in the United States," according to Michael Bastian, director of men's fashion at Bergdorf Goodman. We like them for two reasons. First, they're way comfortable. But second, they're perfect for rummaging around garage sales or manning any kid situation—the circus, a Seadogs game. Don't wear them when there's money on the line—unless you work for Ben & Jerry's.
