Climb and fight against. To achieve this goal, N'Jobu made an alliance with a mercenary named Ulysses Klaue to enter Wakanda and steal his vibrant deposits. Klaue's actions resulted in the deaths of several Wakandans, but Stevens did not know this and continued life as normal. Stevens learns that his father was killed without the knowledge of Stevens, T'chaka, and had won the confidence A of N'Jobu to learn about his plans against Wakanda. T'chaka went to Oakland and confronted his brother in his apartment, threatening to return him to Wakanda to face the punishment. In response, N'jobu tried to kill Zuri. T'chaka retaliated for impaling N'Jobu with the claws of the panther habit, killing N'Jobu with the claws of the panther hab basketball with his friends until he sees Royal Talon Fighter above his apartment complex. He ran inside, just to find his father lying on the floor with panther claws on his chest. Deviled on the death of the only family he had left, Stevens held his father's body and cried, before recovering his father's daily with his real ring as well as everything Stevens needed to know about Wakanda.
