Digital Trends may earn a commission when you buy through links on our site. Right now, you can still save a massive $500 on this 65-inch Vizio OLED 4K TV at Best Buy. It's part of the last-minute Best Buy Cyber Monday TV deals out there right now so you'll need to be quick if you want to save plenty of cash on this great TV. The Vizio 65-inch OLED 4K TV is ordinarily priced at $2,000 but right now, it's enjoying a huge $500 off working out at 25% off the usual price. If you're keen to embrace the latest OLED technology, this is a great time to enjoy doing so for less than usual. If you're wondering why OLED commands such a high price compared to cheaper LED-based 4K TVs, we've taken a look at OLED vs. LED to determine what the differences are and explain all the science behind it. Simply put, OLED means the TV is thinner, lighter and offers far superior contrast and color in comparison to regular LED-based screens. With the knowledge that OLED is better but more expensive right now, the Vizio 65-inch OLED 4K TV looks super appealing at $500 off. Besides having a superior and fantastic looking picture compared to your regular 4K TV, the Vizio 65-inch OLED 4K TV is also useful elsewhere. For instance, it has a borderless design and a profile as thin as 4mm so it'll look beautiful in your living room. It also has 4K 120Hz gaming support so it's able to automatically optimize Xbox and PlayStation gameplay ensuring a smoother and better picture no matter how fast the game you're playing is. On top of that is Vizio's fastest and smartest processor yet which promises best-in-class picture processing, a more powerful 4K upscaling engine plus HDMI 2.1 connectivity. There's also support for Dolby Vision HDR and it uses a certified low blue light display that aims to eliminate eye strain. With four HDMI ports and some useful smart features including Chromecast built-in and Apple AirPlay support, the Vizio 65-inch OLED 4K TV has a ton going for it, ensuring it's even more appealing while $500 off. If you're still not sure, or you've realized that LED-based 4K TVs are more your budget, we've also got other great Cyber Monday TV deals so there's sure to be something else out there for you. As the holidays draw near, consumers are accepting the notion that this winter could be a long one, with plenty of time inside, and we need the best 4K TVs to help us survive. We're seeing some amazing 4K TV deals, including discounts on the newest visual technology, those OLED and QLED 4K TVs. In fact, right now, at Best Buy, you can score $500 off a 65-inch VIZIO OLED 4K UHD SmartCast TV. It's only $1,500, down from its regular price of $2,000. That's 25% off! If you're looking for a 4K TV that won't absolutely dominate your living room or apartment, but stands out more than your average 55-inch home theater centerpiece, this 65-inch OLED 4K TV from Vizio might be the answer. The image will not only be huge, but especially gorgeous, crisp, clean, and accurate, because of OLED technology. What's special about OLED? In simplest terms, it allows pixels to produce their own light, while earlier tech placed the light behind them. In short: brighter, darker, more nuanced, and better images that leave LCDs and LEDs in the dust. Just look at this OLED vs. LED comparison. This is some next-generation tech, and you'll never see a better picture on your TV, or have it move more smoothly. That's partially due to the Ultra Color Spectrum, which provides incredibly lifelike color in over a billion shades. And then there's the nearly borderless design; there are no bezels and the frame is a scant 4 mm, maximizing your viewing experience. Underlying all this beauty is the VIZIO IQ Ultra™ Processor. It's Vizio's fastest, smartest chip, which allows better upscaling and features like the ProGaming Engine, which optimizes your new Xbox and Playstation games for the screen. This 4K TV is smart, too. Using Vizio SmartCast, there's smooth and seamless navigation to your favorite streaming apps like Netflix; no extra box needed. And the VIZIO OLED 4K UHD SmartCast TV integrates with Apple HomeKit, Google Assistant, and Amazon Alexa so that you can control your entire smart home (lights, doorbell, everything) right from your TV. It might be the ultimate in both visual quality and convenience. This is the right time of year to browse 4K TV deals, and having a great TV has perhaps never been so important. If you're looking for an upgrade, or a whole new 4K TV experience, head to Best Buy, where you can get $500 off the VIZIO OLED 4K UHD SmartCast TV. It's only $1,500, which is 25% off its regular price of $2,000. It could be a long winter, with a great amount of time indoors, so you're going to want the best home theater system with which to enjoy it. And that begins with a proper 4K TV, so check out these 4K TV deals. But if you want to make sure your 4K TV arrives by Christmas, head over to Walmart where you can get $52 off this 50-inch Vizio Quantum 4K Smart TV. It's only $298, down from its regular price of $350. It's your last chance to have this 4K TV in time for Christmas, so order now! When it comes to 4K TVs, 50 inches is not too big and not too small — it's just right. They're the perfect size for the entertainment system in your average apartment or living room. With brilliant 4K picture, you can always fully enjoy the details of the images, and 50 inches won't dominate your room like some bigger screens. Vizio is a leader in the world of 4K TVs for a reason. The picture you'll get on this TV is fantastically clear, bright, and precise, even compared to other 4K TVs, thanks to this TV's Quantum Color and its Full Array backlight (which allows better light uniformity), providing over a billion hues of vibrant color. It's got Dolby Vision HDR which upgrades every image so that the brights are their brightest, the hues the most finely graded and the colors are most varied. What you're witnessing is 4K Ultra HD, with over 8 million pixels. Working behind the scenes is the Vizio IQ Active processor, giving you better upscaling to your HD content that isn't quite 4K. And if you're a gamer, or a fan of fast-paced action, whether in sports or action films, this TV's dynamic motion rate 120 has you covered, giving you the clearest, glitch-free presentation of the most intense scenes. There's also a V-Gaming Engine to improve performance on your new PlayStation or other consoles. And then there's the smart-factor, which is borderline genius. This 4K TV has Apple Play and Chromecast built-in, and it can work with Alexa and other voice-controlled devices to give you touchless control. It easily integrates with Google Assistant, Alexa, and the rest, giving you a new hub for your smart home, and there are free streaming channels ready for you to access the moment you connect to your Wi-Fi. With three HDMI ports and a USB connection, what more could you ask for? More 4K TV deals available now As we get close to Christmas we're seeing tons of exciting 4K TV deals, but if you want your new home theater setup by Christmas, look no further than Walmart. Editors' Recommendations There are a lot of places to enjoy HDTVs — sometimes you want a monster for your living room or den, and other times you may want something smaller for the kitchen, dorm room, or even the bathroom. Right now we've got a few great offers on VIZIO HDTVs, made even sweeter with Dell eGift cards, which can reduce your effective price for a 60-inch TV to $850 or a 23-incher to just $78.The 60-inch VIZIO M602i-B3 features a 1080p display with full-array LED backlighting and local dimming. VIZIO boasts a total of 32 active zones, dynamically adjusting the backlight to give you sharper contrast and inkier blacks. The 20,000,000:1 dynamic contrast ratio helps with that too, of course. This TV also packs an impressive 240Hz refresh rate, along with VIZIO's Clear Action 720, so you'll get enhanced motion clarity and a perfectly clear picture even during fast sports or high-octane action scenes.As a Smart TV, there's a full suite of connected features care of VIZIO Internet Apps Plus. All the usual suspects are available right on your TV, including Netflix, YouTube, Pandora, and Facebook. In the case of Netflix and YouTube, you can even load the apps on your smartphone and tablet to browse there, before streaming the video directly to the TV. For those surfing on the TV, you'll be doing it via a Smart Remote with a backlit keyboard. WiFi is built-in to facilitate the process, and there's also four HDMI ports and a USB port for hooking up all your peripherals.VIZIO E231i-B1 23-inch HDTVThis M-Series HDTV sports a narrow, nearly borderless design, resulting in a depth of just 2.5 inches and an attractive look that will fit in anywhere. A pair of 10W speakers enhanced by DTS Studio Sound handle the audio. Dell covers this TV with a one-year warranty.If the smaller set is more your interest, the VIZIO E231i-B1 features a 23-inch 720p LED backlit display. No, it's not 1080p, but on a screen size this small you likely won't notice the difference. This little guy is also a WiFi-enabled Smart TV and includes many of the same apps and capabilities of its much larger cousin. There is just one HDMI port along with one USB port for connectivity, but on the bright side, it's even thinner than the premium large TV at 2.11 inches. Also on the bright side, it's many times less expensive Check out these and a few of our other favorite HDTV deals, all at fantastic effective prices assuming you can spend the bundled eGift Cards at Dell.VIZIO M602i-B3 60-inch 1080p WiFi Smart LED TV plus $350 Dell eGift card for $1,199.99. Great image qualityEnergy-saving dimming featureSlow to load appsMediocre contrast in low-light scenes The Vizio E552VLE was the least expensive 55-inch TV in our test, but you wouldn't guess that from watching it. At a glance, this Vizio lacks the razor thin design of many other TVs (in fact it's something of a behemoth, in this day and age of super-thin sets), but picture quality is good. A built-in full QWERTY keyboard helps with navigation too, making this TV a good budget choice. While the Vizio wasn't a standout set, we had few complaints during our performance testing. Scenes in The Dark Knight, which were used to evaluate image quality, looked good but we found the contrast level less striking than that of other sets. Light picture quality in Avatar was impressive, though you might be turned off by the bright, almost overly saturated colors. In terms of system performance and speed, the Vizio frustrated us with a long startup time. Energy consumption was average, but Vizio employs an auto-dimming feature that helps save energy by modulating the brightness of the TV in accordance with light levels in the room. Though some aspects of the Vizio seem more forward thinking, this set's Smart TV home screen seemed a bit dated compared to other models. Consumer testers didn't have any major complaints, but they rated their experience visiting various sites and using apps like Netflix, YouTube, and Hulu, as average at best. The app layout was functional, and relatively easy to use, but it lacked a certain amount of polish. Built-in WiFi made connecting to wireless painless, and the full keyboard on the back side of the remote control was a big plus when typing. Unfortunately, that also made the remote feel a bit cluttered. We also sometimes had trouble getting the remote to register commands if we weren't sitting directly in front of the set. You may be able to find more information about this and similar content at piano.io When it's time to buy a shiny new flat screen, we're only human, and we tend to want the largest TV we can reasonably afford. Bigger is always better, right? It's hard to shake that feeling, but an 80-inch LCD just doesn't make sense if you're rocking a studio apartment. You could buy a TV on a whim, hoping that it fits perfectly within your space—if you don't mind forking out restocking charges if (OK, when) it doesn't work out. Or you could always grab a tape measure and try figure it out with actual math. But c'mon, just because we're nerds doesn't mean we're math nerds. Vizio has another option: The Vizio Showroom app allows you to do some research while staying perfectly lazy. Once you grab the free app for iOS or Android, you'll print out a provided marker that helps the app discern the scale of your surroundings, and watch as it drops a virtual television into your living space. Just like that. The app can digitally impose a TV in your room, but unfortunately, it can't digitally remove clutter. We've seen similar apps for chairs and couches—boring stuff. But with Vizio Showroom, you can easily envision how a TV ranging between 23 and 80 inches would look in your living room, bedroom, kitchen, or wherever else you might have a hankering for a new screen. You can even attach a sound bar below it, in case you're looking for a little virtual surround sound in your fake TV-owning life. What's neat is that the app can show you not only wall-mounted arrangements, but also freestanding tabletop options, letting you get a sense for the different display possibilities within your home. Simply place the printout on a table, put it in view of your device's camera with the app running, and it'll show you an upright Vizio sitting on your table or countertop. However you have it aligned, the faux set will show a looping clip from the innocuous-looking kid flick, Rise of the Guardians. How would a 70-inch set look on my coffee table? So glad you asked. When it works well, the overall effect is pretty solid, though the grainy background visuals make screenshots look like hilariously rushed Photoshop mishaps. However, the display is prone to odd glitches, which result in your virtual flat screen juddering rapidly against the wall or tilting oddly on a tabletop, as the terribly disconcerting image above can attest to. Luckily, tapping the Reset button usually does the trick and realigns the set to its intended destination. Once everything's all lined up and to your liking, you can snap an image and save it to your device or post to Twitter or Facebook. (Because what fun is having a pretend TV if you can't brag about it?) Curiously, though, there's no option to actually buy any of these Vizio sets from within the app—you know, should you wish to re-create your digital TV-owning fantasy in your actual dwelling. Beyond being a useful little tool for estimating a new TV's impact on your current living space, it's also kind of a fun way to visualize dream viewing scenarios—like this totally reasonable one: Now we're talking. Yeah, that's the ticket. Note: When you purchase something after clicking links in our articles, we may earn a small commission. Read our affiliate link policy for more details.
